Fishermen Report Rivers Too High

Thursday, June 1.—A large number of fishermen from the Pass towns invaded their favorite fishing streams as the season opened. Anglers report that fishing was very poor, the rivers and streams being too high. One angler is reported to have caught nine fish and that means to have been the biggest catch. The others averaged about two each. Rain during the past week-end will tend to bring the rivers to an even higher level, so that fishing will not reach its peak for several weeks.

Pucksters Won Against Elk Valley

Elk Valley absorbed their second league defeat by Coleman Pucksters on Sunday afternoon, when they were trounced 8-3 before a large crowd. A bombing attack in the first innings, when the Pucksters hit Volpati's offerings all over the lot to score 5 runs, paved the way for Pucksters' win.

Paul Yagos was in good form and handuffed his opponents, only allowing four hits during the game. Volpati allowed ten.

Batteries: Volpati and Hampton; Yagos and Gate.

Barney Barnesky Joins Canadians

Outstanding Defenceman With Camerons Intermediates Last Year

The first import to arrive to strengthen Canadians' line-up next season is Barney Barnesky. He played last year for Cameron Intermediates, a Manitoba team which reached the Western Canada Intermediate finals, losing out to Edmonton Intermediates at Kelowna, B.C., this spring.

Barnesky is 5 ft. 10 1/2 ins. tall and husky and an outstanding defenceman with his team last year. He should be a valuable asset to Canadians' rear-guard.

Sprout, Redsky and Landiak, who have been visiting their homes at Winnipeg, are expected to arrive here during the week.

Former Colemanites Take Note

Within the next few weeks the tourist season will be in full swing. Coleman people in large numbers will be leaving for the coast and other summer resorts for their holidays. Former Colemanites now living at the coast and elsewhere derive great pleasure in watching for Alberta cars to find if they know the persons travelling. On numerous occasions they have requested The Journal to publish the serial numbers of Coleman cars, so for their benefit here they are. All Coleman cars, with few exceptions, have the serial numbers from 34-801 to 34-950.

BIGGEST "GATE" SINCE 1928

The opening ball game at McGillivray's sports field on Wednesday, May 31, between Hillcrest and the Pucksters, was unique in one respect. The total admissions from the game amounted to $21 and some cents, the biggest "gate" received at a ball game since 1928. "Wow!"

Interesting facts released by the Department of Agriculture this week disclose that Alberta's rural population of half a million persons live on farms numbering 101,000, and that in 1938 their production of real wealth was valued at $172,686,102.

League Meeting of Hillcrest, Blairmore, Coleman, Michel and Fernie Following Game

A soccer tilt will be witnessed at McGillivray's sports field on Saturday when Fernie will play a return game with the local eleven. Playing at Fernie two weeks ago, Coleman lost 5-3 in a close game, but it is expected they will turn the tables on their B.C. friends. The game is an exhibition, at 6 p.m.

Following the game delegates from Hillcrest, Blairmore, Coleman, Michel and Fernie will meet in the Grand Union and discuss a new league setup. It is hoped to interest Blairmore and Hillcrest to come into the league.

Tennis Club Membership Increases

A sharp increase in membership of the tennis club is reported, fifteen new players having been seen on the courts.

Cranbrook tennis club tournament will be held on June 23 to 25. Bill Balloch is the present single champion of this tournament, and along with Chick Roughhead has the men's doubles title. Neither player expects to defend the titles. It is not known at present if other members contemplate entering the tournament.

NOTICE

Reservations for season tickets for next hockey season can now be made.

Arrangements have been made whereby payment can be made at the rate of 50¢ per pay, same to be deducted from pay statements at company offices.

The rates are $8.00 per ticket, for 12 league games, by buying season tickets.

SALVATION ARMY BAND HERE
THIS WEEK-END

The Lethbridge Salvation Army Silver Band will visit Coleman and Pass towns during the week-end. Comprised of about twenty-five members, the band is under the direction of Bandmaster G. Tulloch, and will take part in the Sunday evening service at the Salvation Army hall. Other appearances of the band will be made on the street at Bellevue Saturday night at 8 p.m., and Coleman 9.45 p.m. On Sunday morning the band will play at West Coleman and Hillcrest. Arrangements for Sunday afternoon have not yet been completed, but it is likely the band will be playing at Crows Nest Lake.

A special invitation is extended to all to attend the Sunday night meeting, commencing at 7.30 p.m. Captain A. H. Smith, officer in charge at Lethbridge, will be the special speaker.

Intimate Glimpses of the Royal Visit to Edmonton

Rousing Reception in Alberta's Capital to King and Queen Biggest Event in City's History

Enthusiasm of Thousands of Northern Alberta People One of Highlights of Canadian Tour

Through the courtesy of Mr. P. W. Abbott, Chairman of the Royal Visit Committee, Edmonton, the writer was given a copy of a weekly newspaper to whom were assigned places from which they could obtain close-up views of the ceremonial functions at the parliament buildings in Edmonton.

An hour or more before the appointed time for the arrival of the King and Queen at the buildings, the majority of those to whom were assigned places either in the legislative chamber or on the broad steps of the main entrance to the buildings, began to arrive. Legislative members, some in morning coats, striped trousers and the crowning glory of a "topper," tried to appear as if they were quite accustomed to the wearing of such formal attire, yet betrayed signs of self-consciousness as the crowd massed in front of the buildings noted their arrival and tried to identify them.

One youthful well-known member in particular caused a ripple of amusement. Fairly tall and slim, his top hat appeared as an extension of stove-pipe which perched precariously on his dome, and apparently it did not fit any too well, for he looked neither to the right or the left for fear of the shiny silk headpiece might wobble a bit.

The member for Pincher Creek with his wife and married daughter were noted among those present, and the writer exchanged words of greeting with them as they entered the legislative halls.

The hour or more of waiting was spent very pleasantly, in front of the buildings had been reserved for the Canadian Legion delegates as well as the delegates to the Women's Auxiliary of the Legion, among whom was Mrs. Harold Turner, representing Coleman branch. At intervals a smartly uniformed Scottish piper marched in front of the buildings playing stirring music, while thousands of people were massing in all directions as far as the eye could see. Every now and then bursts of cheering would fill the air as well known people arrived, particularly when the Victoria Cross heroes mounted the steps to await the arrival of the royal party. Two ladies of the nursing service with decorations for war service also were given a thunderous cheer as they arrived, one of whom was driven up by three portly officers in a small Austin car, which caused hearty laughs as they squirmed up the steps of the car, and the lady with an utter lack of self-consciousness, evidently enjoying the amusement of the crowd, remarked: "Isn't that funny?" and amid many a handclap mounted the steps to her place on the legislative building steps, where later she was presented to Their Majesties.

Adding to the gaiety and good humor of the thousands who had assembled, another band in smart cream-colored uniforms played well-known airs, and so the time passed as the time for the arrival of the royal train from Jasper approached.

Then suddenly there boomed in the distance the first round of the salute fired by the artillery announcing the arrival of the royal train, at the Canadian National Railways depot at 3.30 p.m. The royal couple were greeted at the station by Lieutenant-Governor J. C. Bowes Premier William Aberhart, Mayor J. W. Fry, and Hon. James A. McKinnon, M.P. for West Edmonton, accompanied by their wives.

The inspection of the Guard of Honor was quickly completed, and the procession proceeded to Portage Avenue, where along each side of this two-mile broad thoroughfare had been erected bleachers with a capacity of 68,000 seats, the biggest grandstand in the world. On a visit there in the morning the writer met Major and Mrs. Acton of the Salvation Army, Captain Finch and Captain Mattison, former Coleman officers. The S. A. band had a reserved space here to

Delight in Meeting Just Plain Folks

It is little incidents such as these that indicate how interested the King and Queen are in the common people, how they delight in gaining first-hand knowledge of people and things which can be best obtained unhampered by formality and officialism.

The writer had a close-up opportunity of observing the very human traits of this royal couple, and could without effort hear the conversation between them and those to whom they talked. The Queen in meeting the old gentleman above referred to, remarked affectionately: "Why, don't you sit down?" noticing that a chair had been placed for him, when a young lad in the front rank of onlookers, with utter lack of formality, said: "He doesn't want to sit down." The Queen with her gracious smile, said: "Oh, so he doesn't want to sit down," which caused a ripple of laughter among those close by, and shook hands with the old gentleman, who quite freely talked to her.

Out at the University hospital a stop was made, though not on the official program. Here soldier patients and little children had been placed outside, some in beds and cots.

Here the King remarked to the nurses that it was a pity the people crowded in front of the children's beds, and the Queen complimented them on the way in which the beds were decorated with red, white and blue streamers.

"SAYING IT WITH FLOWERS"

Marie Stacey, 9-year-old child from the Kiwanis Orphanage in Edmonton selected by the royal visit committee, is shown presenting a bouquet to the Queen, on the steps of the Legislative building, who graciously complimented the little one on the manner in which she fulfilled her pleasant duty.

Much curiosity was aroused throughout the province over the sudden change in selecting a child to present a bouquet to the Queen at the legislative buildings in Edmonton last Friday.

Turning to another, a veteran of a famed regiment, the Scots Guards, the King chatted about his medals. His name was McGregor, and he had the Egyptian Star, the South African Campaign medals, the Great War, the D.C.M., and the Royal Humane Society medal, the latter for saving life during a fire at Wellington Barracks, London, many years ago. This old soldier, now living at Westlock, Alberta, told the writer he enlisted for the Great War in the 19th Battalion from the Crows Nest Lake.

Such a storm of protest immediately followed the radio announcement, that a child from Vancouver should be brought to Edmonton to present the flowers, that the committee here a hurried consultation advised the premier and his cabinet that if such action was carried through, it would prove the most unpopular thing the premier had ever done and would create widespread adverse comment throughout the province. It had been suggested by the chairman of the royal visit committee that failing Mr. Aberhart or Mrs. Bowes, wife of the lieutenant-governor, undertaking the duty, that one of the young children of the cabinet ministers might be selected. The cabinet ministers promised to let the chairman know as soon as they had decided which child would be chosen. Time passed on, however, and no advice was received by the chairman. Finally, came the radio announcement, which caused quite a stir.

The regular meeting was held in the council chamber on Tuesday evening. Present Mayor Pattison, Councillors White, Antrobus, Atkinson, Kerr and Chapman. Absent, Councillor Balloch.

The result of a petition signed by thirty persons on Second Street regarding the nuisance caused by a stable-barn, two reports, one from the health officer, Dr. Rose, and the other from the Chief of Police, were laid before the councillors. Both reports stated the barn was in a sanitary condition. Mr. Sagoff, who was present to state his side of the case, was told by the councillors that it was their aim to eliminate all stable housing growing horses within the town. The case was laid on the table for further discussion at next meeting.

Mrs. Vollendorf was present and asked the councillors if she was a

GROWN IN SUNNY, SOUTHERN ONTARIO

The Problem Of The Metis

It is not surprising that the half breeds, or Metis, of Saskatchewan have organized, held their first annual convention and drawn up a program of reforms, consisting of some 15 points to be presented to the federal government, or, that as soon as they heard what was in the wind the Metis of the other two prairie provinces expressed a desire to join forces with the Saskatchewan group and set up an organization to cover Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

For the Metis have a very real problem and one that is even more acute than that of the farmers in the prairie provinces, the unemployed workers in the cities and towns or of those who are on the borderline of British.

These others are regarded, more or less, as the wards of one or more of the three governing units of the country, but not the Metis. Up to the present the federal, provincial and municipal governments have shown a disposition to wash their hands of the half breed population. They are the unemployed child and have been treated as such.

From the first days of settlement of the country the federal government has assumed and still assumes responsibility for the Indian, the original inhabitants of the country. All those who have come into the country since the days when the plains were solely occupied by the Indians, the bison and the gophers are presumed to be primarily the care of the municipalities, urban or rural, in which they reside, except when such conditions exist as to warrant the proclamation of national emergency, when the federal government or the federal and provincial governments jointly come to the rescue of the distressed in partnership with the municipalities, and in some cases and some areas without municipal assistance.

Country Dwellers

The great majority of the half breeds reside in the rural areas. In the first place because by nature they are not suited to urban existence and in the second place because they have inherited the Indian's love of the open air life and, under former normal conditions, have found their subsistence more readily in the country than in the cities and towns. Their way of life, which they have inherited from their Indian forebears, is that of trapping, hunting, fishing and other outdoor pursuits.

For this reason the large majority of the Metis are still to be found in country districts and the greater number of them are squatters, building shacks on waste lands and flats, preferably near water and water or occupying abandoned and often ruined town buildings. Hence they have never been recognized in the municipalities in which they reside and have not, in the state of other tenents who ordinarily contribute indirectly to municipal services through rentals.

Thus the municipalities have been very loath to assume any responsibility for these residents. The provincial governments have not seen fit to adopt them as their charge and the federal government refuse responsibility on the ground that they are not Indians.

Even before the advent of the great era of depression, the problem of the Metis was becoming severe. As more and more land was put into crop, as wild lands where a little hay could be put up became more and more curtailed, as wooded lands where fuel or fence posts could be cut receded, and as increasing restrictions were placed on hunting, trapping and fishing in the interests of game conservation and wild life preservation and as such restricted areas were extended, the half breed found it increasingly difficult to wrest a living from their surroundings. With the depression deepening during the past decade and with no government willing to assume responsibility for them, the problems of the Metis increased literally tenfold and they are problems that will not solve themselves with the return of normal conditions and better crops, especially for those who reside in the cultivated southern sections of the three prairie provinces.

As a result of the situation the Metis, during the past decade, have been living in almost indescribable squalor and poverty. Two or three years ago a relation of the conditions under which they were living, by a reeve of a municipality in which many Metis resided, stunned the 600 or 700 delegates at the annual convention of the Saskatchewan Association of Rural Municipalities. The convention, at which the Metis sat on the border of actual starvation, which the municipality could not relieve because of its financial condition and the necessity of taking care of its own taxpayers, that a dozen or more were sleeping on bare earth floors in a single room, that they were being exploited by other residents of the municipality and it was pointed out that existence under such conditions could do nothing else than breed disease and immorality.

Should Be Settled

At the time of writing the Metis have not released for publication the 15 point program which they drafted as a memorial to the federal government, so that it is impossible to say what is their own solution of the problem.

It appears, however, that it is a problem which must and should be solved, not only in the interests of the half breeds themselves, but in the interests of all whom they contact, at a joint conference between Federal and provincial authorities.

What such a conference would decide as the proper solution of the problem can only be a matter of conjecture, but, in view of the type of life to which they are best suited, it would seem advisable that reservations be created for them in the northern part of the provinces where they could live under conditions which would enable them best to care for themselves.

In any event the problem is serious enough to demand immediate and effective attention, especially in the light of the self evident fact that improved conditions for others will be of little or no benefit to the Metis population.

Magnificent Gift

Viscount Nuffield Donates Large Sum For British Troops

Viscount Nuffield, the magnate and philanthropist, announced his intention of contributing 1,000,000 shares of Morris Motors for improving the facilities for recreation and enjoyment of the militia, Territorials and other forces.

His gift, worth approximately £1,500,000 (£60,000,000), was revealed in a letter to War Secretary Hore-Belisha. It is intended, Lord Nuffield said, as a "permanent memorial to the spirit which animates us today."

Lord Nuffield has given away £13,000,000 (about $60,840,000) in the past few years, his benefactions extending over such a wide range as gifts to Oxford University, an iron lung to every empire hospital that wanted one, and large sums for rehabilitation of distressed areas of Britain.

In his letter to the war secretary, Lord Nuffield said he had been "greatly impressed by the wonderful response to the national appeal for voluntary recruiting."

"No less remarkable," he added, "has been the willing acceptance by all classes and parties of the principle of universal service, calling for equal sacrifice by all."

His letter said he was anxious to make "some personal contribution towards the comfort and well-being of those who are giving up, however temporarily, the ordinary course of civilian occupations and home surroundings in the service of our country." The gift will be administered by the Royal Society of Canada at Montreal.

"For every pound of matter returning from such a trip, 1,000,000 tons would have to start out to provide mass for speed control," Dr. Campbell said.

He explained his paper had arisen from an alleged recently-made statement by an astronomer that "the possibility of travelling to the earth's satellite in a rocket does not seem so remote now as the realization of the television dream did less than a century ago, considering the scientific principles involved."

Entirely New Method

Machine Shells About 900 Pounds Of Walnuts An Hour

A new method of shelling walnuts recently developed at the University of California uses an explosion to open the shells. The shelling operation, which is done by machine, consists of passing the walnuts over a circular saw which cuts an opening in the shell; blowing explosive gas-air mixture into the nut; and finally passing the nut through a flame which explodes its gaseous content. This method, of breaking shells avoids fracturing the nut meats, which are not affected by the explosive. The machine in which this series of operations is accomplished opens about 900 pounds of walnuts per hour.—Scientific American.

Edmonton Professor Puts Dampers On Flights To Other Planets

Warts of the world, trips to Mars, rockets to the moon—Utopias created by Jules Verne and H. G. Wells were punctured in a 10-minute speech by an Edmonton professor before the Royal Society of Canada at Montreal.

Dr. J. W. Campbell told a group of Canadian students it would take a rocket the size of a giant mountain like Mount Fuji to carry an earth-dweller to the earth's satellite, the distant, bland, affable celestial body, theme of countless love songs through the centuries.

In meticulous scientific terms he related the legend of the rocket to the moon, and tore the ground from under the feet of the Utopia writers.

Cultivation Of Soybean In Canada Becoming More Important

During the past few years the soybean has been finding a place in Canadian industry and its cultivation is today an established fact in Canadian farming. The most important products of vegetables oil seeds are oils and meals, which may become raw materials for many useful commodities.

To-day, Canada is to a great extent dependent on foreign supplies for vegetable oils and meals. About $15,000,000 leaves this country annually for vegetable oil seeds products which could very well be retained here to benefit Canadian agriculturists. Both the federal and provincial governments have for sometime been acclimatizing native grown soybeans and many varieties are now available and suitable for certain soil conditions.

It has been definitely proved that Canada can produce soybeans in commercial quantities, in fact the soybean crop last year in Pelican Island, Ont., alone was valued at more than $35,000.

The Australian Press Union says Victorian and New South Wales education authorities are concerned at the effect of radio on homework. A New South Wales officer questions whether the home now has a suitable atmosphere for homework because many parents wish to listen.

Victorian teachers are using this as one argument for a general reduction in homework. They say that the distractions at home are such that secondary school children cannot possibly do all the lessons set.

Collecting From Spain

Italy Will Accept War Materials In Payment For Services

Italy is preparing to collect war debts from Nationalists by accepting Spanish materials valuable in munitions making, a reliable informant said.

The total owed by General Francisco Franco to aid to the Spanish Nationalist cause is said to be approximately 10,000,000,000 lire, (about $500,000,000). This does not represent cash advances but war reparations, guns, munitions and other supplies.

Italy is said especially to want iron ore in return.

Italian plans are to exploit the ore reserves with Italian technicians, and possibly laborers, and to transport the ore in Italian ships.

Parliament Prorogues After A Battle With Senate Over Measures

Ottawa. — Canada's 18th parliament concluded its fourth and perhaps last session. Members of the House of Commons and the Senate wrote a finish to five months' work with a Saturday night prorogation, and left for their homes with the possibility that an election would be held before the year is out.

There has been no definite pronouncement by the government that there will be an election, but some circles of parliament feel convinced that members will have to face the electorate before they can resume their seats in the commons next winter.

A bill to create a central mortgage bank shuffled back and forth between the senate and commons chamber until late Saturday evening before the Conservative majority in the red chamber, supported by one lone Conservative in the commons, the veteran Hon. C. H. Cahan, Montreal St. Lawrence-St. George, with drew opposition to its passage as originally drafted. Prorogation came at 10:30 p.m.

It was an unusual end to a session unique in several respects. During its life parliament was visited by the King and Queen for the first time in its history. A commons committee sat through to the very moment of prorogation for the first time, and for the last week of the session both the prime minister and the leader of the opposition were absent, the former on official business and the latter holidaying.

The dispute between the commons and the Conservative majority in senate, and the continued battle between government and opposition members over the Bren gun contract in the public accounts committee, provided unusual touches to the prorogation. In the end the senate bowed to the all but unanimous wish of the commons on the central mortgage bill but the public accounts committee would not consent to the prorogation until an end to its debate.

Sir Lyman Duff, chief justice of Canada and deputy to the governor-general, officiated at the prorogation ceremony in the senate chamber. The speech from the throne was short and gave expression to the government's satisfaction that the King was able to give royal assent in person to the bill ratifying the Canada-United States trade agreement and its gratification at the universal and heartfelt rejoicing of a united people who are being honored by the visit of their sovereign.

For Railways To Decide

Suggestion Made That Royal Train Be Put On Exhibition

Ottawa. — Public exhibition of the royal train across the country when the royal visit has been completed was proposed in the House of Commons by A. A. Heaps (Labor, Winnipeg North).

Such interest had been demonstrated in the royal visit throughout the country that there was no doubt the public would take full advantage of an opportunity to inspect the train after the King and Queen, he said.

Hon. C. D. Howe, minister of transport, said the train involved no new equipment, but only standard equipment "dressed up a little." The cost to the government had been merely that of painting and refurbishing the train. What was done with the train after the trip he would be up to the railways but he would pass on the suggestion.

Would Set Estate

London. — The Duke of Connaught, first-uncle of the King and former governor-general of Canada, is offering for sale his Riviere home "Les Bruyeres" at Cap Ferrat where, until a few years ago, he spent most of his winters.

King And Queen Had Home Of Their Own While At Jasper Park

Jasper Park Lodge, Alta.—Queen Elizabeth had a little home all her own in Jasper park and like any woman the first thing she did was to go poking about the cupboards in the kitchen, ask about the electric ice box and the telephone.

What interested her most was how the food was prepared and served from a central kitchen. Her private kitchen was not used during the 24-hour stay except for tea.

She was the guest of the Canadian government in a luxury log cabin where she and the King and their two personal servants slept.

Their retinue of attendants, ladies in waiting, equerries, officers and Scotland Yard operatives slept in other cabins along Lac Beauvert where the King and Queen were as much alone as they ever likely to be in this Dominion.

From the main cabin of the log "cottage" the King and Queen could see all the 4,200 square miles of Jasper national park their garden.

Queen Elizabeth delayed a mountain expedition while she asked questions about life in a Rocky Mountain luxury cottage.

She learned how her food was brought in heated push carts from a central kitchen and placed in electrically-heated cabinets until she was ready for it; how all the gadgets in the place worked, and was told the red and gold telephone would connect her with Buckingham palace, where her daughters, Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret Rose, are waiting for her return to England.

Iceberg Menace

Icebergs Are Warned To Take A Course Further South

Washington. — The United States navy department and coastguard cautioned North Atlantic ships to take a course far south of the usual trans-Atlantic lanes to avoid an almost unprecedented southern movement of the iceberg area.

An unexpected shifting of the cold air has sent the bergs deeper south in the Atlantic than they have been observed in a century, the navy's hydrographic office said.

Hunt Dinosaur Bones

Toronto. Headed by Dr. L. S. Russell, assistant director of the Royal Ontario Museum, an expedition will leave Toronto June 11 for southeastern Saskatchewan to comb the Cypress Hills region for remains of prehistoric mammals, it was announced. The expedition hopes to find bones similar to those uncovered in South Dakota badlands.

Arms Exports

Ottawa. — Value of arms, ammunition, implements or munitions of war exported from Canada under 26 permits issued by the department of national revenue totalled $125,030 in May, the department reported.

Stand Behind Britain

Daughters Of The Empire Pass Resolution At Annual Meeting

Toronto. — Delegates to the closing session of the 30th annual meeting of Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire, passed resolutions denoting their preparedness to defend their liberties and asking the Canadian government to stand behind Great Britain.

The resolutions were passed unanimously. A resolution, to be forwarded to the federal government, reads:

"That we petition the government to stand firmly behind the Motherland in case of national emergency."

Another resolution passed urged that the members of the order pledge themselves to "exercise their franchise in all municipal, provincial and federal elections."

Reporting for the film committee, Mrs. H. S. Angas, of Toronto, recommended that provincial chapters report to their provincial governments if the percentage of British and Canadian news is less than 50 per cent of the news reels showing in their provinces.

An invitation to hold the 1940 meeting in Saint John, N.B., was accepted.

German Film

Request For Return Of Same Refused By Quebec Authorities

Quebec. — A request by German authorities in Montreal for return of a moving picture film seized three weeks ago by provincial police has been refused. Premier Léger said:

"The German consul in Montreal had written the Quebec attorney-general's department asking for the return of the 'Nazifilm,' but was informed that that was impossible since 'court action was being taken,' the premier said.

He did not enlarge on his statement regarding 'court action.'

"Nazism and Bolshevism are closely linked in their persecution of religion," said the premier. "There is no room for either in Quebec."

Secret Radio Station

German Station Makes Violent Attacks Against Militarism

Warsaw. — Polish newspapers reported a secret German radio station was heard throughout eastern Europe for the first time with a violent attack against "Hitler militarism."

The new station was reported to represent "the German Liberty Front" and unidentified speakers appealed to all "truly German organizations and all German patriot to adhere to the new front against Hitler militarism, against slavery and blindfold."

Cost Of Rearmament

Might Result In Starvation In Lower Income Groups

Geneva. — John C. Winant, director of the international labor office, warned that the armament race might result in "actual starvation in the lower-income groups."

"Rearmament cannot continue at the present rate of acceleration without eventually absorbing so much of the national income of many countries as will prove intolerable."

This month the Bank for International Settlements estimated the world cost of arms at $1,000,000,000 a month.

NO CAUSE FOR WAR—SAYS MUSSOLINI

There are no problems in Europe to-day which justify war, according to Signor Mussolini, who is seen above as he made the remark at Turin.

Pianist Stricken

Taken ill a few minutes before a concert performance in New York Ignace Paderewski, famous 78-year-old Polish pianist, was unable to commence the concert and had to be escorted to hospital. He suffered a heart attack.

Praise For R.C.M.P.

King George Expresses Thanks For Services During Royal Visit

Vancouver. — King George was welcomed by Commissioner S. T. Wood of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, expressing Their Majesties' thanks for R.C.M.P. service during the royal visit and "our high appreciation of the manner in which they discharge their duty on all occasions."

His Majesty said he is proud to be honorary commissioner of the R.C.M.P., "a force that for many years has been famous throughout the world."

It was a genuine pleasure, he said, to be able to visit the Regina "barracks, the training-ground of the splendid body of men who are to-day maintaining in all parts of Canada the great traditions of the force."

NOTES AND COMMENTS

"SAY IT WITH FLOWERS"

Premier Aberhart, evidently sensing the impropriety of his action and the indignation aroused, submitted to the committee's ruling that such a thing simply "couldn't be done," and left the royal visit committee to make its own selection.

On Thursday, the day before the royal couple were to arrive, there was much scurrying around to select a child. Mr. Percy W. Abbott, K.C., chairman of the committee, had a happy thought. "Let's go to the Kainai Orphanage and see if we can find a suitable child there." So off they went, and after seeing two groups of children, the first child of the second group which entered the room was selected as their unanimous choice. "Now we'll have to get clothes suitable for the occasion," said the chairman, so one of the large department stores was telephoned to have their ladies' outfitting department remain open a little later than usual so that a brand new complete outfit could be purchased for the child selected, nine-year-old Marie Stacey.

Having been fitted, a visit to a beauty parlor was next arranged in order that little Marie's hair might be appropriately fixed up for the most auspicious event of her young life. Late in the evening a dancing instructor was secured to rehearse the child in making the proper approach to the Queen, make her curtsey and the little speech accompanying the presentation. On Friday afternoon thousands of wildly cheering people saw the scene in reality and the Queen bestowed her most gracious smile on this little child, who so splendidly carried out her duty on the steps of the main entrance of the legislative building.

And didn't that crowd cheer! It must have been heard across the river on the south side of the city.

Though police lines and the ranks of soldiers lining the route of the royal procession were broken through several times last Friday in Edmonton, they were good-natured crowds. At the parliament buildings, immediately the King and Queen began to ascend the main steps, those in front were pushed right through the police and soldiers from across the driveway right on to the steps of the building where the royal couple stood.

Immediately a detachment of naval volunteers who were stationed further down the driveway were brought up and with their rifles held vertically gradually edged the crowd back into position. As far as one could see dense crowds were trying to get a distant glimpse of the proceedings on the legislative building steps, where the presentation of Victoria Cross heroes was made.

Again at night when the royal couple were due to arrive at the Macdonald hotel for the government dinner, thousands packed the space in front of the hotel, and the Calgary Highlanders, who were being entertained to a dinner at the Armories, had their meal rudely interrupted by orders to immediately turn out and reinforce the troops and police to control the crowd. Yet dense though the crowd was, the Queen smilingly walked through a lane forced open by the police to enable her, with the King, to enter the hotel.

WHENEVER opportunity offers, the King and Queen delight to engage in informal chats with the people, particularly the soldiers, sailors and nurses who have seen war service. This has been particularly noticeable on many occasions during the royal tour.

It was noticed at Edmonton last Friday in the visit to the University hospital, and also on the steps of the legislative buildings, when without waiting for formal introductions, the King and Queen immediately walked over to a Mrs. Pattinson, widow of a Victoria Cross hero, who by some error had not been included in the official presentation list. Next to her was an old war veteran of three campaigns, not on the official list, and seeing his medals, the King immediately struck up a conversation.

ANOTHER instance was the meeting of war veterans from Deer Lodge hospital during the brief stop of the royal train on its eastward trip, at Winnipeg, on Sunday. The King remarked how sorry he was that he had not seen them on his trip westward on May 24, and the Queen added: "This is a better show, anyway."

Long lines of dignitaries may be presented, and make their bows and curtseys, but the simplicity, withal

APPRECIATED

Through the courtesy of Mr. P. W. Abbott, K.C., chairman of the royal visit committee in Edmonton, the editor of The Journal and several other weekly newspapermen were given points of vantage last Friday. Credentials were issued for places on the platform for the arrival of the train at the C.N.R. depot, for the Press gallery of the legislative chamber, and for the main steps of the legislative chamber. The president of Alberta Division of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association, Ralph C. Jessup, of the Macleod Gazette, was honored by being invited to the government dinner in the Macdonald hotel, and Harry J. Ford, the Association's vice-president, and editor of the Leamore Globe, was assigned a seat in a car in the royal procession. These courtesies were appreciated by the weekly newspaper editors, who were thereby enabled to witness many intimate little incidents of the visit of the royal couple which otherwise would have been impossible in such a vast throng which crowded into Edmonton from all points.

Postmaster Murphy of Cowley was the representative of the Crows Nest Pass towns between the border and Macleod at the Alberta Postmasters' Association annual convention held last week in the Macdonald hotel, Edmonton, at which over five hundred delegates, the largest attendance on record, were present. The Canadian Legion also held its annual convention during the same time, so that Edmonton was indeed a busy place throughout the week.

EVERYBODY'S HAPPY

The aggressive policy of half a dozen enthusiasts during the early spring in sponsoring a carnival to raise funds for three local sports organizations resulted in all debts being wiped out.

Several hundred dollars were paid to local merchants, who grinned their appreciation. To the men whose business it has been to promote these sports organizations in the face of extreme difficulties, mainly through the lack of finance, during the past few years, it was a real pleasure to once again see their clubs out of debt, and many breathed a deep sigh of relief.

PROFITLESS ENTERPRISE

In Winnipeg and Calgary certain enterprising people built bleachers on the route the King and Queen were to traverse, hoping to make a fair profit thereby. But somehow or other people did not buy seats in large numbers in either city. One such contractor in Winnipeg claimed he lost $3,000 by this venture. Others lost less sums. So the royal visit did not bring happiness to all—Brooks Bulletin.

The Red Deer Advocate's special issue commemorating the royal visit to Alberta contained many advertisements of business houses, in addition to many splendid photographs of the royal family.

Grain growers produced $105,000,000 of this total. They marketed 143,000,000 bushels of wheat, 101,000,000 bushels of oats, 29,200,000 bushels of barley, rye, flax. Forty-two per cent of the wheat marketed in the first seven months of the season graded No. 1 Northern or better.

their maintenance of royal dignity, of the King and Queen are the qualities that endear them to the hearts of the millions of the common people.

Mr. James Lowe presented his case to the councillors regarding the poor drainage system in the vicinity of his home in West Coleman. It will be given the attention of the works and property committee.

A letter was received from A. Bind da, in West Coleman, regarding the nuisance created by cows. It was the decision of the councillors to prosecute to the limit every person owning a cow in the incorporated area of the town.

The works and property committee will inspect the grounds surrounding the home of Mrs. A. Thorner, and take steps to rectify the drainage system.

A lot in West Coleman was sold to Andy Borosky at a price of $35, plus the cost of surveying and staking the ground.

Two lots immediately east of the Sartoris property on the flat were recommended to be purchased by the works and property committee. They were lots 1 and 2 in block 14. The lots will be purchased.

The works and property committee also recommended the replacing or the culvert running between the Fauville and Lardino residences on Sixth Street. The drainage system about the Harold Willets home will be deferred for the present.

The mayor and all councillors who find it convenient to attend, will represent Coleman at the convention of municipalities to be held at Lethbridge on June 15 and 16.

The letter of resignation of James Ford as secretary-treasurer of the town of Coleman was accepted. It was agreed to advertise in the Calgar

PSYCHOLOGY IN ADVERTISING

Advertising so conditions you and me that when the need arises for, let us say, a cake of soap, the name of the brand advertised will flash into our consciousness.

Advertising appeals usually not to one's gray matter, but to one's emotions and instincts, and it is supposed to make four emotional appeals, generally listed as (1) attracting attention, (2) arousing desire, (3) holding attention, and (4) effecting a sale, i.e., getting the response in time.

This response can best be obtained through Journal and Bulletin advertising—Psychology Digest.

Read 1, John 4:1.

The word "spirit" has many meanings—ardor, fire, animation, vivacity, breath of life, impulse to follow some plan. We are asked to test each spirit before we breathe it into our inner lives by placing our confidence in it. How shall we do this? A much-loved modern philosopher recently said: "If I were to live my life over again, before spending any of my time, energy, or money in any given activity I should first determine whether it would contribute to the sum total of one or more of these three fields of human endeavor: Truth, Beauty, or Unselfish Love in any form. If so, then it is worth the expenditure of my time, energy, or money."

CHURCH OF THE NAZARENE

Pastor, Rev. Leonard Falk. Dorothy Thomson, Organist.

Friday, June 9th, the concert of illustrated gospel songs will be given again at the Church Hall at 7:30 p.m. This concert was given in March with great success and because of the many requests to put it on again, we have decided to stage it on Friday evening. This is an extremely colorful program and you will not want to miss it this time. A scene from the Pearly Gates will be portrayed very vividly. Onward, Christian Soldiers, will be portrayed by the Pope, the Anglican minister, the Salvation Army lassie, the Quaker preacher, and the regular clergy. Come and bring your friends. No admission fee; just a silver offering.

Sunday services will be in charge of the new minister, Miss Mooshian will introduce him to the congregation. He and his wife will arrive in town from B.C. on Saturday. Rev. Falk just received his B.A. degree from Northwest Nazarene College in Nampa, Idaho, a week ago. Both he and his wife are exceptionally fine workers and will prove to be a great blessing to the work in Coleman. The many friends of the church will give them a royal welcome, and a pantry shower is being arranged for them by the members and friends.

Miss Mooshian will leave Coleman Monday morning and will be traveling on the road throughout the year visiting the churches in the interests of Young People's work and also conducting evangelistic campaigns. She was elected as the district president of the Young People's Societies, at the last Assembly.

If you have no church home come to the Nazarene Church, where you will find a cordial welcome.

Miss Thomson will remain for two weeks helping with the work.

INDUSTRIES EMPLOYING OVER 100,000

Reviewing all Canadian manufacturing industries, the latest report from the Dominion Bureau of Statistics shows that only three provide employment for more than one hundred thousand workers. These are the wood and paper industry, employing 162,374; the textile industry, employing 114,966; and iron and its products, with 107,203. The same three industries also lead all others in salaries and wages paid.

Tribute To Queen Mary

People All Love And Admire Her
—Stated New York Paper

To be capitated in an automobile when you are of the age of 72 may be thought to indicate a cruel malice of fate. Queen Mary's escape without serious injury added a new warmth to the sincere and spontaneous congratulations that were showered upon her on her birthday anniversary. Her composure, courage and dignity have never failed her. She has gone through great crises. She has had a deep experience of suffering and sorrow. To her late husband, to her children, her grandchildren, and most of all, her people she has been a symbol of kindness, a disciplined, strong and patient character.

She was equal to all her multifarious duties as Queen. As Queen Mother, if her daily round is shorter, she still plays her part quietly and beneficially. As Princess May of Teck she learned in an unthrifty household economy and management. She has been unfailing in her charities. While she has always kept the official etiquette carefully, she is noted for her easy and democratic friendliness with common folk. Wherever she goes she seems to be as popular as Victoria was.

In some respects she is "Victorian". That may remind us again with what scrupulousness that adjective was so often misapplied a few years ago. Whether at some occasion of state or saying nice things to a tennis champion and beaten opponent, Queen Mary always does and says the right thing. In this country she has won the respect and admiration deserved by her high qualities; and sympathy with her trials. We wish for her immunity from accident and many happy birthday anniversaries—New York Times.

How Industries Grow

Always Buy Empire Products, Made In Western Canada

(By A. H. Warwick)

The Industrial Development Board of Manitoba has for many years worked for the establishment of new industries and the expansion of existing ones in this province in an endeavoring greater prosperity to urban as well as rural people of this part of the West.

To-day, in order to illustrate that where there is local industrial support, there is bound to be growth, stories of two different types of manufacturing will be very briefly related.

Five miles north of Winnipeg, on a knoll overlooking the road that skirts the Red River, stands the old stone church of St. Andrews. It stands on the further side of a crag that runs behind it, one may see, at the river's edge, a hollow in the ground, the stubs of timber. This hollow, grassy, was once the excavation below one of Western Canada's first flour mills. The timber stubs are the only vestiges of what was the super-structure of one of our early Western industries.

Mr. E. G. G. Hay was the miller in those pioneer Red River days. He died some years ago, but the spirit of industry shown by him has continued. The water driven mill that ground the grain which made the company's flour has gone, replaced by vast mills, equipped with the latest ingenious devices of this machine age, grinding the best wheat in the world into the finest of flour, for consumption in the far corners of the globe.

To this day, in the early years of this century, it had already become a farming country of grain, and in the world's economy, now ranks high in industrial progress in the West. These industries have increased so rapidly that the Prairie Provinces are now looking forward to becoming a great manufacturing centre within the Empire.

John Hay's first business thrived in those early days because the residents of the Red River community of St. Andrews brought their wheat to him for flour, and further, he and his brother, and further still, his sons, were growing in the early days of the business.

Then the small industry served the community by supplying goods required. Now industry has expanded more. Not only does it supply goods, excellent goods, comparable to any manufactured in similar manner, but at the same time it has a very important place in the supplying of employment to many of our citizens.

And, ladies and gentlemen, in this matter, providing employment to the thousands of young people is one that deserves our special consideration of all of us.

Some few years ago the people of the British Isles gave a tremendous impetus to business, thereby made many, many jobs, by wholeheartedly adopting the plan of "Buy British." When anyone bought, whether it was the housewife, purchasing a cake of soap, a man buying a shirt, or a family investing in a motor car, they first asked the question, "What is made in the British Isles?"

The result was a great upswing in business with benefits to all.

To-day we, in Western Canada, need an upswing in business. We need more men and women back in their old places in our factories, drawing a weekly pay cheque to spend with the grocery, hardware, and other stores, to go to buy houses, books and boots, to go to shows, to put on the collection plate. As they did in Britain, it was the housewife, purchasing a cake of soap, a man buying a shirt, or a family investing in a motor car, they first asked the question, "What is made in the West?"

And, if you think you can't purchase won't matter. But let me tell you it is the link in the chain of better times that must be there before the chain is complete.

So, let us all, in a house by the side of the road,

Where the race of men go by—
The men who are good and the men
Who are bad—
And the ones as bad as I."

Eugene Field's tenderness:

"But the little toy dog is covered with dust,

But sturdy and stanch he stands..."

"Oh, let's take a little ride!" They were shooting skyward again. "Why don't you come up sometime?" She leaped off and headed for the hills.

Sarah Lynn took pains to speak pleasantly, casually. "Kit, this has been great fun and I'll bear witness that you're a wonder, but I really must be getting back. My brother's waiting and I have a hundred things to do before we leave."

She heaved the ship doggedly to its course. "Say, listen. I'd be doing you a big favor if I never flew you back to your fireman. You take it from me; they're all heels. I could write a book about 'em, babe. All alike from that ace of yours to the dire duce I drew!"

Sarah Lynn achieved a laugh. "But just the same, I must be getting home, Kit." She was fighting a swiftly growing anxiety; her eyes on the instrument panel, her ears listening earnestly to the motor. There was something about it she didn't like an alien sound.

They were flying low over the mountains now.

"Remember that night in Fresno, when the firemen bailed you out like a sack of mail?"

"I do, Kit, and how kind you were to me! I'll never forget it. I've never stopped being grateful, and I've always hoped I could do something for you, sometime." She forced herself to speak steadily.

"Well, you squared it all right when you hopped with me, just now, showing those bums you had confidence—" she broke off, frowning.

Stark terror laid hold of Sarah Lynn. "Kit, what's the matter? Let me fly her! Here, let me! Kit, what's wrong?"

"Just everything, that's all," the stunt flier said, her voice rasped and shrill. "Just everything in the world! Well, what do we care, babe? Stand by for a crash!"

CHAPTER XII.

Kitty Medill crawled slowly and painfully out of the wreckage. Her clothing was grotesquely torn and blood ran brightly from cuts on her face and body. She limped unsteadily to a large flat rock at a little distance.

How Women in Their 40's Can Attract Men

Here's good advice for a woman during her change (usually from 35 to 62), who fears she'll be left behind. It's good advice about hot flashes, loss of pep, dizzy spells, upset stomach.

"Just get more fresh air, 8 hrs. sleep and if you can't get a reliable 'WILSON'S' tonic, take Epsom Salts. Vegetables compound, made especially for women, It helps Nature build up the body. It's good for the heart, more easily to enjoy life and assist calming jittery nerves and those who change to a new way of life. The change of life, Pinkman's is WELL WORTH trying."

tance and sat down, her hands over her eyes, shaking, whimpering, crying.

She kept herself resolutely blindfolded. "It's just a lousy dream," she told herself. "Just a nightmare, like when you eat something awful. Pretty soon I'll wake up." She pressed her hands tighter over her eyes. "I won't look. I'm not going to look till I'm sure I'm awake. Just a lousy dream. I never took her up, never—she was on her feet, reciting haik to the remnants of her plane.

She screamed when she saw what she was looking for. Sarah Lynn was pinned to the ground, face downward, one hand flung clear, an olive-skinned, sun-tanned hand, delicately muscular and thin with faintly pearly nails. In the midst of breakage and tragedy that hand looked normal and comfortable and unwounded.

"You're not dead," the flier addressed her harshly. "You're not dead, I won't let you be—dead, do you hear me?"

Sarah Lynn did not hear.

Kitty Medill began to weep wildly. She got down to her knees and touched the hand. "I told you you weren't dead!" she triumphed. "Now all I got to do is drag you out." She began a slow and thorough investigation. The weight resting on Sarah Lynn's back was utterly impossible for her to move even the fraction of an inch, and it held her like a vice from her shoulders to her hips. One arm was under her; the other, her leg, her head, were free of encumbrance. "Well, that's all to the good," Kit continued to talk to her. "All I got to do is find something I can use to pry that joint loose so you can wriggle out."

She stood erect and walked unsteadily away. They were on a ledge in a canyon with mountain crests all about them. One, higher than the rest, she thought must be Mount Unumhun, named in the Indian days. There were no trees. She stood on a rock to look. There was absolutely nothing which she could use as a lever to pry the load off Sarah Lynn.

She walked back to the smashed ship and took stock. Exploration discovered her flask half full of whiskey, matches, four sandwiches in a tin box. She set her treasures together on a flat stone and turned at last to Sarah Lynn who was moaning. "Kitty, Medill, run to her," she said. "She's all right."

"Kit—she's right, she's right!" "M—h—back—could you lift—Kit swallowed hard. "Well, you see, kid, it's pretty heavy. I can't quite cut out the mustard, alone. But they'll be along, now, most any time, and we'll have you out before you know it."

"All—right—" another sighing whisper answered.

"Sure we will. They were watching us, all those birds at the field. They know the course I took, and when we don't show up, they'll be out after us." She thought Sarah Lynn was asleep.

The whisper came again, "Kit—" "Right here, babe!"

"My back Couldn't you lift it a little?"

She would try, she told her. She did try, frantically, futilely, straining until she was crimson and gasping. "See? Can't make the grade. But just as soon as the boys get here—and they'll bring tools and everything."

Her passenger did not appear to be listening. After an interval she said, "Water"

The stunt flier managed a very good laugh. "Well, that's the joke. Didn't have any on board, and I was going to go barging around looking for a spring and get lost in the dark. But I'll tell you what I have got!" She retrieved the flask.

"No more water round here that you'll find in a speak, but a lit' swig of this'll do you more good anyway!" She crawled as close as possible to Sarah Lynn, still holding her head, but had the liquor flask to her lips, but she coughed and choked. "Well, for Pete's sake, don't waste it! Well, anyway, I'm going to put my handkerchief under your face, keep it off the dirt." She smoothed the square of soiled pink linen and spread it beneath the bruised cheek. "I betcher that feels better!" She stood up and looked down at her for a long moment. "It's just your back that's caused, babe. Arms and legs okay. Might be a good idea to move your legs once in a while, you know, exercise 'em. Try it, will you?"

Sarah Lynn was motionless. "Go on, kid! Just to please me? Move your legs!"

Sarah Lynn said, "Are you sure my legs are there? I don't think I have any legs."

"All right," Kit said after a pause. "Let's go! probably better just lay still and rest, anyhow, till they come for you."

"Why, I'll bet they're tumbling out to hunt already, planes and people on horseback and Boy Scouts and

SHE WAS A VICTIM OF HEADACHES

Kruschens Got at the Cause

This woman's headaches were of the gripping kind that reduce the sufferer to something like helplessness. She tried tablets. She tried pills. All without avail.

Kruschens could help her.

She used to get very bad headaches, she said. Two or three tablets or pills of any kind could relieve them. One morning, casually, I tried Kruschens Salts in a glass of hot water. I continued to take them because I had one of those awful headaches since Kruschens suits me better than anything else. I find it very good."

Headaches can nearly always be traced to sluggishness of the kidneys, liver and intestines, and to the unexpected retention in the system of poisons and wastes which pollute the blood. The numerous salts in Kruschens stimulate the internal organs to healthy, regular action, and help to collect and allow to collect. Your inside is kept clean and serene. And that is just how Kruschens Salts bring quick and lasting relief from headaches.

Holds World's Record

Products Of South African Farm Number 572 Different Kinds

That his farm holds the world record for the number of products grown or manufactured on the spot, was claimed by P. J. Van Dyk as he exhibited at the agricultural show in Worcester, South Africa, and was publicly complimented by the Minister of Agriculture.

He displayed 572 different kinds of produce from his acres and could not find room for an additional 40. The varieties ranged from 35 kinds of firewood and beans to the skins of game and snakes, harness, wooden farm implements shaped from specially hard woods, olives, walnuts, wheat, corn, lucerne, wine, grapes, fruit and preserves.

Van Dyk maintains that his farm is almost self-supporting.

San Bernardius mission on Awabobi on the Painted Desert in Hopi land was the first building erected by a civilized man in Arizona. Ancient pueblo ruins still stand on the site.

To Compete With Clippers

Italy Will Bid For Trans-Atlantic Passenger Travel

Aviation sources disclosed that Italy is preparing to bid for trans-Atlantic passenger travel with a twin-motored, forty-passenger monoplane which has been completed at Trieste and awaiting installation of motors. The new ship, designed to rival America's big Clipper planes is technically described as a Cant Z312. Its top speed will be about 310 miles an hour and cruising speed 250 miles. It will carry a load of 30 tons.

Railways of Australia will hereafter not give pennies in change when tickets are purchased, and passengers protest that this is an increase in fares.

GYPROC is the ideal material for walls and ceilings. Just consider these features:

Tom Llewellyn Died This Morning

Admitted to hospital here two weeks ago, Thomas Godwin Llewellyn, died at 1:30 a.m. today (Thursday), in his 25th year. He was born at Turin, Alberta, the son of L. G. Llewellyn and the late Martha Ann Llewellyn, who died about two years ago. He was survived by his wife, formerly Miss Katherine Young of Lethbridge, his father, of Coleman, and an elder brother, William C. Llewellyn, of Calgary.

Funeral arrangements had not been completed at time of going to press. Lieut. A. Warr, of the 20th Battery, Lethbridge, of which Tom was a member, came up to give a blood transfusion in an effort to prolong life, but death had taken place before arrival. Deep sympathy is expressed for the relatives.

Mrs. G. LeRoy returns this evening to Penticton.

AINT IT THE TRUTH!

Business places that have to compete with others who do not pay the minimum wage are placed at a disadvantage. Some scab substitute printing is done under a scab system of wages, and there are always people who will take advantage of scab conditions in labor.

Surely Premier Aberhart must realize by this time that his ammunition is nothing but duds; as ineffective and useless as soap bubbles, in his efforts at monetary reform.
